

Using Pulse Check for Distance Learning

Pivot COVID-19 Response School Support

Check in:

- On student wellbeing. Set up weekly surveys using our formulated question sets to assess how students are going and where support is required.
- With teachers. Customise questions to gauge wellbeing, work management and need for transitional support or resources.
- With teammates. Customise surveys to prepare for planning, give feedback on recent meetings or remote learning strategies anonymously.
- With families. To maintain contact and check on learning support at home.

Assess:

- Student understanding of new content and skills. These types of pulse checks work with small groups or whole classes. Understand what they know and where to go next.
- Student's pre-existing knowledge and skills, such as an exit ticket system. To plan and prepare new units or modify existing ones. Understanding what students already know to establish units that are relevant and extend on students' existing knowledge and skills.
- Success of new initiatives or changes with staff or students. Customise and create questions to gain insight and plan the next direction.
- Teaching practice. Customise and create questions to gauge how teaching practice is perceived by students once learning has been established in a remote capacity.

Setting up a Pulse Check is simple

Select the Pulse check tab on your welcome screen

Put in the administration details

Select or create your questions

Submit your survey

Forward the link to your survey audience